TOOK FARE AT VIRGIN ROCKS

Sch. Aloha Home with 350,000 Pounds Salt Cod.

The light westerly wind and fog which prevailed during last night and this morning was not much of a chance for vessels to come along from the eastward and the receipts here are again light.

Sch. Paragon reached port yesterday afternoon with a small fare, finding halibut scarce, as have all the rest of the halibut fleet. She had two swordfish, the last of the season, and about as late ones as have ever been heard of here.

Sch. Moanam, Capt. Hugh Quinlan, came in from a Quero shack trip, just before dark, with a good catch, 90,000 pounds of fresh fish and 40,000 pounds of salt cod.

Two of the gasoline auxiliary seiners, schs. Veda M. McKown and Victor arrived from North Bay during the night and a couple of the pollockers drifted down from Boston to take out here.

The torchers found herring scarce and only had 20 barrels this morning.

During this forenoon sch. Valentina brought in 25,000 pounds of pollock and a little later the dory handliner Aloha, Capt. John McInnis, plugged in through the fog loaded to the scuppers and hailing for 350,000 pounds of salt cod. The craft is from the far-off Virgin Rocks, a dangerous group of shoals far off into the Atlantic, but a great fall codfishing ground. The Aloha sailed from here August 9, so her trip is a very successful one and in keeping with the kind that Capt. McInnis is expected to and always does brings when he goes after codfish. The hail is a conservative one and the craft will undoubtedly weigh out more than the 350,000 pounds.

The arrivals and receipts in detail are:

AFFECTS LOBSTER FISHERY.

Nova Scotia Paper Claims Canadian Ruling Is Far Reaching.

The Clark's Harbor, N. S., Coast Guard says:

"A peculiar state of affairs is apt to arise if the fisheries department stands by its original ruling that beam trawling in Canadian vessels outside the three mile limit cannot lawfully be prevented. Such a decision must of necessity be a general one, and therefore it applies with equal force to all and every other mode of fishing carried on by our people beyond the territorial pale. In thus laying down the law, the door is opened wide for lobster fishing, during the whole closed season, by shore boats tending traps on the seaward side of the line, and selling catches to American smacks, which already operate on those grounds, and which, it is rumored, will return there in larger numbers next summer. If domestic trawlers can fit in our ports and forage in the open, unforbidden, then domestic trappers must be allowed the same liberty, and no prudent man in these regions would like to see that work go on. So the authorities are in a strait betwixt two, and whatever is finally done about it, the department will scarcely venture to make an invidious distinction."

SCH. BLANCHE MAY BE FLOATED.

Fish Has Been Taken Out and Leak Stopped.

Advices to the Gloucester Mutual Fishing Insurance Company yesterday from sch. Blanche, ashore at the mouth of Canso, N. S., harbor, stated that all the fish had been taken but of the vessel, the leak had been got under control and it was hoped to float the schooner next tide.

Portland Fish Notes.

The herring business at this port is getting to be of considerable proportions, giving employment to quite a number of men and daily distributing a large amount of money among the boat fishermen. The fish are more plentiful in this vicinity than they have been for years, although reported as rather scarce in the neighborhood of Eastport and Lubec, where large quantities are packed as sardines. Agents of the canning factories at those two places were in the city yesterday and purchased large quantities of herring, nearly 1,000 barrels going down on the steamer Calvin Austin last night. New York is also a good customer for the fish, the Russians there being particularly partial to it. From 300 to 500 barrels are brought here this season, was landed is not equal to the demand.

The Boston fishing schooner Selma sold her fare of halibut Monday to the J. W. Trefethen Company, at 15 cents per pound, the best price paid this season. The Selma has had good luck this year, having stocked over $22,000 since last January.

The first cargo of salt herring brought here this season, was landed at Charles A. Dyer's packing shed on Central wharf Monday, the fishing schooner Mary A. Osier having come in with 50 barrels. About 50 barrels of shad were also taken out at the same place Monday, brought up from the eastward.

The great scarcity in fish, which has prevailed the past week was relieved Monday, about 100,000 pounds of mixed fish having been landed with large receipts also expected yesterday.

The arrivals included schs. Rena A. Percy, 20,000 pounds; Wesley W. Smith, 10,000; Fanny Hayden, 8,000; Defender, 6,000; all fresh fish.

Steamers Pet and Elthier were in with herring.

HERRING STILL HOLDING OFF

No Signs of Fish Yet at Bay of Islands.

Private advices to the Times from Bay of Islands, N. F., give the latest news of the local herring fleet now there for cargoes of salt herring. The herring schools are still holding off and there is no change in the discouraging prospect, although a few days may change all and the fish may strike in, although it is admitted that they are quite late.

The advices state that it rained hard all Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week, but Saturday came in clear and pleasant. Schs. Arethusa and Henry M. Stanley arrived Thursday and schs. Corona and Alice R. Lawson on the 27th. Sch. Saladin has since arrived. Herring have not yet arrived and the reports from Bonne Bay say there is not a sign of herring there. No nets have been yet put in the water by any of the American vessels. Capt. Bonia in sch. Fannie A. Smith will start for the Middle Arm at the first opportunity to try there. Dr. Webber, who is well known to every skipper and fisherman that goes to Bay of Islands is very sick.

MOST ARRIVALS OF THE SEASON

Some Good Fares at T Wharf Today.

Boston's fish story today is the biggest talk T wharf has made thus far this season, as far as the number of arrivals is concerned, for since last report, no less than 63 vessels with fares ranging all the way from 5000 to 70,000 pounds have arrived bringing a total of nearly a million and a half pounds of fresh fish, in which all kinds of ground fish excepting halibut are represented. Of these many trips, some 33 arrived yesterday and most of them were disposed of on yesterday's market, leaving this morning's arrivals to number about 30 and facing a fine demand.

In the whole big lot no less than 575,090 pounds of hake and outside of a few large ones, right alive, these fish were selling from 60 to 70 cents, far below the Gloucester splitting price of 90 cents. The pollock in totalled 240,000 pounds and these, about all that were sold, went at 60 cents, while the most is ticketed for the splitters here.

This left about 325,000 pounds of haddock and 340,000 pounds of cod for the biggest part of yesterday and today, which is no great amount for the best market days in the week, so the price has held up well and gives the fishermen little or no cause for complaint. Haddock started in at $3 and better for new shore fish and cod was around the $4 mark.

Sch. Regina, with 67,000 pounds, had the largest fare and among the other good ones were schs. Pontiac, John J. Fallon, Mary C. Santos, Gov. Russell, Alice M. Guthrie, Ellen C. Burke, Richard, Fanny Belle Atwood, Hortense, Ethel B. Penney, Terra Nova and Annie Perry, all having from 30,000 to 50,000 pounds each. The other fares ranged from 4000 to 25,000 pounds.

BOTH CAUGHT ON TRAWL.

Porpoise and Gannet Brought to Boston by Fishing Vessels.

Sch. Massasoit, which was one of the great fleet of vessels arriving at Boston yesterday, brought in an unusual catch in the shape of a 200-pound porpoise, which was caught in the trawls.

Another unusual capture was a gannet, which was brought in by sch. John J. Fallon. The bird snapped at the bait on a trawl and was hooked the same as a fish. When Bernard Clark, one of the crew, attempted to capture the gannet, the bird put up such a fight that it was some minutes before the fishermen subdued it and took it on board.
